Design Directives

Whether you're tackling a home makeover of your own this autumn or just want a burst of aesthetic inspiration, here's what's new, now and next in Miami's design scene.

SHOWPLACE

○ No Boundaries

Baskets from Africa, consoles from Paris, fixtures from Denmark... Designer Wade Hallock certainly embraces an open-borders philosophy to décor at his new showroom, Wade Allyn Home. To that end, the inventory is what Hallock refers to as "the vintage, the antique, the restyled and the new." Equal opportunity tastemaker that he is, Hallock also sees his new endeavor as a reflection of the nomadic nature of the industry. "Design is not static," he says. "It's always shifting." Next up for the prolific designer: "My own line of furnishings... and I want to branch out into home fragrances... and maybe a showroom in Istanbul in the near future." 6667 Biscayne Blvd., Miami, 305.756.3773, wadeallyn.com

DESIGN WISDOM

ON WHAT'S NEW: "During Salone I stayed at the Nhow Hotel in Milan, a perfect example of modern Italian design."

—HERNAN ARRIAGA, INTERIOR DESIGNER

EXPANSION

Johnny B. Butterfly pendant by Ingo Maurer at Luminaire

○ Future Looks Bright

Luminaire is moving on up. Literally. The brand is expanding its presence in Miami with a second floor addition at its Luminaire Lab location in the District, expected ready by November. The extra 6,700 square feet will house Luminaire's Outdoor Therapy collections, as well as its Boffi kitchen and bath lines. That will mean the closing of the two temporary stores in Coral Gables, although the flagship on Ponce de Leon Boulevard will remain open. Also new for the brand: the launch of an e-commerce site that goes live in September. 3901 N.E. Second Ave., Miami, 305.576.5788, luminaire.com
